

Aspects of the European Model of Informational Society

Sofia COLESCA, Senior Lecturer Ph. D

Abstract: Information technology represents in the last decades the new challenge of the mondial economy. Fast achievements in this field affect more and more the way of living, working, learning or entertaining. The present article tries to present both the positive and negative aspects of the European model of informational society.